1. Did you know?

Care standards are rising all the time. That's really good news for the people who use our services, but it means that care workers need to be aware of some quite complicated information. Making sure they are aware of it is vitally important.

2. Change to procedure

Read this email from a care organisation's head office.

Imagine you had to brief colleagues about the changes described in the email.

Note the information you would include in your briefing here:

3. Explaining the GSCC Codes of Practice

Read this extract from the GSCC Codes of Practice.

Code of Practice for Social Care Workers

The Code of Practice for Social Care Workers is a list of statements that describe the standards of professional conduct and practice required of social care workers as they go about their daily work. It forms part of the wider package of legislation, practice standards and employers' policies and procedures that social care workers must meet. Social care workers are responsible for making sure that their conduct does not fall below the standards set out in this code and that no action or omission on their part harms the wellbeing of service users.

The General Social Care Council expects social care workers to meet this code and may take action if registered workers fail to do so.

Social care workers must:

Be accountable for the quality of their work and take responsibility for maintaining and improving their knowledge and skills.

This includes

- Meeting relevant standards of practice and working in a lawful, safe and effective way

How would you explain what the extract says to a new member of your team, who did not know about the GSCC Codes? Note the key information to include in your explanation here:
